SELF-SUSTAINING RESERVOIR RECREATION PROGRAM	400-3	9/27/62	1 OF 1

BACKGROUND

The City of San Diego has conducted some type of recreational program on its reservoirs since 1913. During this time, domestic water supply has been the primary purpose and recreation a secondary use and valuable by-product of the reservoirs.

There are ten impounding reservoirs which are used by the City for some phase of its recreation program. Depending upon water levels, fishery conditions, patronage, fire hazards and other similar factors; activities such as fishing, water fowl hunting, propagation of fish, picnicking, camping and hiking are conducted.

In order to enforce the sanitary requirements and to insure that no bodily contact activities occur, reservoir patrols are maintained both on shore and by boat.

According to the typical schedule, a reservoir is open for fishing on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday during each week of the reservoir recreation season.

PURPOSE

It is the intention of the City Council that the reservoir recreation program and facilities will be maintained and improved as time and finances permit, but that the program and facilities will always be operated with an understanding of the primary purpose of the reservoirs. It is further intended that the entire lakes recreation program continue on a self-supporting basis in order that neither the water consumer nor the bond holder shall be charged for any part of the recreational program.

POLICY

Recognizing the first priority and purpose of the impounding system is to supply potable water to municipal consumers, the reservoir recreation program, as a secondary function, will operate without detriment to and with an understanding of the primary operational responsibilities of the system. Moreover, the program costs for reservoir recreation operation, maintenance, and capital facilities shall be maintained over a period of time on a self-sustaining basis.

BACKGROUND

The City of San Diego has conducted some type of recreation program on its reservoirs since 1913. During this time, domestic water supply has been the primary purpose and recreation a secondary use and valuable by-product of the reservoirs.

There are ten impounding reservoirs which are used by the City for some phase of its recreation program. It is further intended that the entire lakes recreation program continue on a self-supporting basis in order that neither the water consumer nor the bond holder shall be charged for any part of the recreational program.

POLICY

The City Council recognizes that the primary purpose of the water impounding system is to supply potable water to municipal consumers. The reservoir recreation program shall operate as a secondary function without detriment to, and with an understanding of, the primary operational responsibilities of the system.

The Lakes Division shall endeavor to develop a broad-based, well-balanced program capable of offsetting total operating costs. Income derived from the sale of permits, concessions, and access or other fees should be applied to direct operating costs, including maintenance and minor improvements performed by other City departments, as well as program management and administration. If total costs exceed revenues, these costs shall not accrue to the water development bondholders, but should instead be met by general fund or other appropriate sources.
